MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Regulations such as these, which prohibit horse manure on trails, combined with opposition to legislation such as the current composting facilities bill, have residents frustrated at the increasing "un-friendliness" of Anne Arundel County. Read more on equery.com.

University of Maryland is ISO 16 ponies for their novel studies evaluating turfgrasses for use on horse farms beginning May 2017. Click through for more info on the study and pony eligibility.

Ponies will be free leased from owners and given excellent care with veterinary oversight. All studies are non-invasive. Ponies will be turned out on pasture. By volunteering your pony, you will help us learn more about how to safely manage grazing ponies and help our students earn graduate degrees.

If you own a pony that is a gelding, between the age of 5 and 15, in moderate body condition with no cracks, nicks, and has no...

KEEPING YOU INFORMED

The Equiery shared Maryland Department of Natural Resources- Wildlife & Heritage Service's post.

Published by Jennifer Webster [?] · January 3 at 9:26am ·

If you ride anywhere but an indoor, and if you turn your horses out, you should be aware of the firearms hunting seasons in Maryland's 23 counties. It is our duty to share the outdoors, as well as protect our animals and ourselves. Please save this link to your favorites, as these seasons are subject to change on a bi-annual basis. Keep yourself informed!!

TIME FOR THE BUDWEISER CLYDESDALES!

Ah, Super Bowl Sunday. The day hundreds of thousands of horsemen and horsewomen from coast to coast gather to see the latest epic Budweiser Clydesdale video tale (also known as a commercial). Alas, apparently we will be disappointed this year, according to advance marketing from Budweiser and the official website devoted exclusively to Super Bowl commercials, as Budweiser is going in a different direction this year with its ads. But we need our Budweiser Clydesdale fix! The Equiery is here to serve our readers, so we went in search of Bud Clyde fix...and found this really cool story on the Facebook page for Bowman's (who, in full disclosure, is an Equiery client who receives digital marketing benefits). Be prepared – the video may bring tears to your eyes.

The Budweiser Clydesdales are fed exclusively by Purina Horse Feed, and this video is about a fascinating program that is supported by Purina (as well as a variety of other national companies) called "A Home For Every Horse." The A Home For Every Horse program helps connect rescue organizations to resources and people available to help. The rescue featured in this video is but one of more than 600 horse rescues & sanctuaries across the United States who are receiving benefits from Purina, and according to Purina, as of November 2016, Purina has donated more than 800 tons of horse feed to sanctuaries and rescues from coast to coast. Of course, being journalists with a focus on MARYLAND, The Equiery wanted to know how many MARYLAND sanctuaries and rescues participate in this program. Turns out, very few. We will explore this more in a future Equiery article.

In the meantime, click on the link below to get your fix for the Budweiser Clydes (maybe throw it up on your big flat screen TV to get the full Super Bowl effect), be prepared for goosebumps, grab some tissues – and please don't forget to like this post and SHARE this post on your own Facebook page! Help us break last month's record reach!

Purina surprises horse rescue shelter with feed donation

On November 5, 2016, Purina surprised Far View horse rescue shelter in Colorado with two tons of feed. It's all part of how Purina shares greatness....

The Equiery has run editorials critical of WSSC (the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, which 6,000 acres around the Patuxent watershed), so - in the spirit of the holiday season, we thought it appropriate to run kudos to WSSC! Visit www.equiery.com to read a letter from longtime Equiery reader Debby Poole, as she outlines everything the WSSC is doing RIGHT.

ATTENTION EASTERN SHORE EQUESTRIANS!

Worcester County is currently soliciting public input on a plan for the Ilia Fehrer Nature Preserve.

The plan, which outlines the various sections of the 437-acre preserve, will serve as a guide for future activity on the property, INCLUDING horseback riding!
